A bomboniere is a small party favor traditionally given to guests at Italian celebrations, particularly weddings. They hold five candied almonds (also called confetti, or Jordan almonds). The number five represents health, wealth, happiness, fertility, and long life; and candied almonds represent both the bitterness and sweetness of life.

Bomboniere can take many forms, from a simple tulle bag to truly ornate boxes. My bomboniere is a simple three-inch elongated pyramid that can be decorated any way your creativity inspires you!

1. Print template on sturdy card stock and decorate as desired.
2. Cut on solid lines (including the slot in Flap E).
3. Score on dotted lines.
4. Fold on the scored lines.
5. Glue Flap A to the wrong side of Flap B.
6. Fold Flaps C, then Flap E, and finally Flap D, tucking the end into the slot of Flap E.
7. Fill with five candied almonds or other sweets or treats.
